United World Leaders

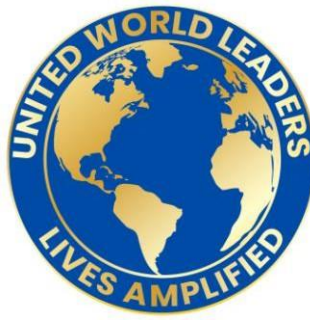

45 Rockefeller Plaza, Suite 2000
New York, NY 10111

New York, NY — United World Leaders, the Institution of global government and business leaders, capital allocators, and policymakers - all united by a mission of bringing socioeconomic prosperity and peace across the world announced the appointment of Keara Sauber as Chairwoman of its Women's Healthcare Council.

In this role, Sauber will lead strategic initiatives focused on advancing innovation, investment, and cross-border collaboration in women's health—an area increasingly recognized as both a critical global health priority and a significant economic opportunity. She will also be responsible for identifying and engaging with the Institution leading figures from across industries and regions, including heads of major companies, regulators, institutional investors, and other key decision-makers shaping the future of healthcare globally.

"We are at a pivotal moment where healthcare, data, and technology must converge to serve people more intelligently and equitably," said Keara Sauber. "This platform brings together the right leaders to not only discuss change—but to execute on it. I'm focused on ensuring that women's health, in particular, is no longer underserved, but becomes a core pillar of innovation and investment globally."

A Vision for the Future of Healthcare and Innovation

Keara will play a key role in advancing strategic initiatives focused on:

Elevating women's health as a global priority across healthcare systems and investment portfolios

Accelerating innovation at the intersection of biotechnology, AI, and consumer health

Aligning capital with scalable, high-impact solutions that drive both financial returns and measurable outcomes

Building cross-border partnerships between industry leaders, investors, and policymakers

As CEO of Incora Health, Keara is leading the development of a next-generation female health intelligence platform, powered by an elegant wearable earring that captures continuous biometric data uniquely tailored to women's physiology. Her work reflects a broader mission: redefining how health data is captured, understood, and applied to improve outcomes at scale.

A Curated Network of Global Influence

Keara will develop this United World Leaders Council to represent a selective ecosystem of senior executives, founders, and institutional leaders who are actively shaping the industry—not just participating in. Members are chosen based on their ability to contribute, collaborate, and drive tangible impact across sectors and geographies.

This initiative is designed to foster:

- High-level strategic dialogue with actionable outcomes
- Access to global partnerships and capital networks
- Opportunities to participate in specialized committees and working groups aligned with members' expertise
- Driving Impact Through Collaboration

Keara's appointment reinforces her long-standing commitment to building and supporting ecosystems that empower founders, advance innovation, and create sustainable value. With over two decades of experience spanning biotech, venture capital, and company creation, she brings a unique perspective on how to bridge science, capital, and execution.

"The future will be defined by those who can connect disciplines, challenge legacy systems, and build with intention," Sauber added. "This is about creating a coordinated effort among leaders who are ready to move industries forward—not incrementally, but meaningfully."
